Humanity

MEINES
[m ɛ ɪ n ɛ s]

Humanity is a virtue associated with basic ethics of altruism (selflessness). The use of the code helps us develop the quality or state of being humane, understanding, kindness, compassion, generous behaviour and benevolence towards other people. It helps identify and eliminate all forms of modern-day slavery, human rights violations and discrimination (e.g. based on skin colour, religion, clothing, origin, or place of birth, etc). The code encourages us to save lives, alleviate suffering, preserve and promote human dignity in all circumstances, in the middle of wars, pandemics, poverty and famine, man-made or natural disasters, etc. It gives us a deeper understanding of the concept of humanity, and makes us realize how important it is to constantly practice this virtue in our lives. Let's say 'no' to the faulty mentality of 'the ends will justify the means' and instead let's apply the principles of humanity, with maximum respect for the lives and well-being of our fellow humans and of our own. Our world needs free, loving, compassionate, thinking and responsible people! Using this code helps us to achieve all that.

"Humanitarianism consists in never sacrificing a human being to a purpose." (Albert Schweitzer)